VI. Family Record written by Henry Rose Deal.

It is to Henry Rose Deal, youngest son of Philip and Margaret Blose Deal that we are indebted for this family history, for it was he who, on January 3, 1861, old, feeble, restless and unable to work, wrote a memoir of the Deal family, stating by way of preface that he had written it for the benefit of his children, which would "perhaps be more satisfaction to them than a photograph".

From this old record, I, Lulu Deal Denney, began tracing names, to the counties and states referred to, until by following each new reference and clue, I gleaned from numerous letters the information here set down. Each story told, each thing stated as a fact has been verified from the above sources of information.

HISTORY OF THE DEAL FAMILY by Lulu Deal Denney

Love of fame, the desire to enlarge their dominion, eager to sway the sceptre over subjugated nations, influenced the ancient Germans to leave their hearths, and to achieve conquests, thus proving themselves in days of yore, "Herren der Welt", Lords of the World.

At different periods, various causes and diverse motives induced them to abandon their Vaterland.

Religious persecution and political oppression drove thousands to Pennsylvania. From 1682 to 1776 Penn. Was the central point of immigration from Germany.

In 1765 a number of German Reformed and German Lutheran fled to Danish Prussia, where they remained some time, then went to Holland.

Undoubtedly the ancestors of Jacob Diehl, the Great, Great Grandfather of Henry, Abraham and John Deal, were among their German immigrants.

Some time in 1769 Jacob Diehl left Rotterdam, Holland and sailed on the Ship Minerva, landing in Philadelphia, October 16, 1769.

On the ship's record we find he signed Deal "Diehl", in English script, using one German script letter, showing that Jacob Diehl was not an uneducated German immigrant since few at that time could write both English and German.

A note attached to rhe record states that an English clerk on the boat changed the spelling of several names. Diehl was listed as one of the names with changed spelling.

JACOB DIEHL settled in Lancaster Co., PA with his French wife and and son Abraham, who was probably 8 or 10 years old. The tax records show that he paid taxes there in 1771. In 1772 he took up land in Northampton County, In 1773 he disposed of his holdings in Lancaster County and settled permanently in Northampton Co. where he still had holdings in 1786. Jacob Diehl served in the Revolutionary War. He was a Private, "Enlisted February 12, 1776" on Roll of Captain John N. Nelson's Independent Company of Riflemen, First Pennsylvania Battalion commanded by Colonel John Philip De Haas, January 30 to November 30, 1776; Corporal, Captain Henry Bicker, Jrs., "Company of the Fourth Pennsylvania Regiment; Corporal, "January 1, 1777-1781," on list of Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates of the Fourth Pennsylvania Regiment, Continental Line; Corporal on Depreciation Pay List of the Fourth Pennsylvania Regiment, Continental Line. Jacob Diehl must have died shortly after 1786, since there is a complete tax record up to that time and since he is not on the Revolutionary War Pension list where his name would have appeared had he lived longer. He was probably between the ages of 40-45 years at the time of his death. Jacob Diehl may have had other children, but we know only of Abraham Deal.

ABRAHAM DEAL, who will be known in this record as Abraham Deal I, the son of Jacob Deal, was probably eight or ten years old when he landed in Philadelphia with his father and mother in October 1769. As a child he learned the trade of a nailer, a smith who forged nails from wrought iron. This became a lucrative trade, since nails were very much in demand by the settlers, who used them to build their rude houses and put together rough wagons. The military records show that Abraham settled in Lancaster county with his father, Jacob. His name appears as a private on the records of the Lancaster County Militia in 1781-1782. Sometime after 1782 he moved into the adjoining county of York, where he plied his trade and reared his family of six children. I can imagine Abraham Deal as a stalwart German--the son of an immigrant who had the courage to leave his native land and risk the hardships of the pioneer in a new and unsettled country. He belonged to the Dunkard church, and I doubt not that our three great aunts Catherine, Christina, and Elizabeth, with our great uncles Abraham II and John, together with our great Grandfather Philip, spent many a weary hour on Sunday morning, trying to sit quietly on a rude hard church bench, under the austere gaze of Great Great Grandfather Abraham, as they tried to listen to a lengthy sermon on Damnation.

About 1800-1801 Abraham took his family of six children and migrated in wagons constructed of hand hewn logs and nails wrought in his own blacksmith shop, to Rockingham County, Virginia. Here he took up land, and became a farmer, using his trade of smith as a means of additional financial aid to a large family. Abraham Deal died in 1825 at the age of 66 or 67 and is buried in Rockingham County. VA.

PHILIP DEAL, the son of Abraham Deal I was ten years old when he settled with his father in Rockingham County, VA. From early childhood, he worked diligently on the farm with his father. As he grew older and could assume the responsibility of long hard trips over mountainous roads, he was sent to Richmond, Frederiksburg, and Lynchburg, Virginia, and even to Nashville, Tennessee, the principle markets at that time, with loads of flour, bacon and clover seed. Returning he brought back store goods, or plaster paris, fish or salt.

Our Great Great Grandmother died about 1807-1809 leaving her family to the rigors of pioneer existence. Philip was apprenticed to a backsmith, by the name of Michael Ehrman.

In 1811 Philip Deal was married to Margaret Blose, daughter of George Blose of Shennandoah Co., VA. The records from the Adjutant General's office in the War Department of Washington D. C. show that Philip Deal served in the war of 1812 as a private under Captain Daniel Strickler's Company of Infantry, 6th Regiment Virginia Militia. His service commenced September 1814 and ended December 8, 1814.

Margaret Blose Deal who became our great grandmother was a remarkable pioneer wife and mother. Living at a time when there were no conveniences and very little money, when the country was in the midst of the War of 1812, she still had time to instill into the hearts of her three sons, John, Abraham and Henry, the rudiments of religion, and to teach each of them a simple prayer, which according to my Grandfather Henry's memories served to help him through many difficult times of his childhood and the trying years of his latter life. Due to the hardships of rearing her three sons, John, Abraham and Henry, during strenuous times, her health failed and she died in 1829.

In 1831 Philip Deal married a second wife, Magdalena Heaston, who according to her step children was an exemplary woman. She died in a short time so Philip, with his three motherless sons prepared to go west, to the state of Ohio.

In the fall of 1836, having accumulated sufficient money, and a good two horse team, they started by covered wagon to go five hundred miles from friends and relatives.

The neighbors gave them a grand farewell gathering to see them start. Among many tears, and heart handclaps and "God Bless You's". Great Grandfather Philip, too touched to speak without tears, climbed upon his seat, cracked his whip and the sorrowful little party started, with Henry, the youngest hugging close in his arms his favorite little dog.

After four weeks of hard traveling they arrived in Preble County, OH. Here Philip took up 160 acres of land.

In 1840 Philip Deal married a third time--we have no record of this marriage except that this stepmother was not popular with Philip's children as the former one had been. From this time until death, Philip Deal owned and operated a small store and blacksmith shop in Middletown, Butler Co., OH.

He died June 21,1845 and is buried in Middletown, Butler Co., OH.. Great Grandfather Philip Deal and his oldest son John were buried on the same day. Abraham attended the brother's funeral and Henry the father's. The brother's before leaving Ohio, for Indiana erected a monument at their father's grave which bears the following inscription.

Mr. Shinn apparently fe[illegible] the attack coming on for he drove to one side of the street in the 300 block on Manchester avenue. Mrs. Shinn immediately went to summon help and called a local physician and the local police. However, death occurred before either reached the decedent.

The body was first taken to the Wire Funeral home and then to the Eikenberry Funeral home in Peru.

Mr. Shinn was a former Miami county auditor serving for eight years. He was affiliated with the Loree Brethren church where he was the Sunday school superintendent for 35 years. He had been in ill health for sometime.

In addition to the widow he is survived by one son, Beveridge, at home. 11-6-1949

PERU — When Beveridge Shinn ran out of gas Wednesday morning, he pulled over on U.S. 24. He was flying a plane at the time.

Shinn, 73, rural Peru, was flying to Peru Municipal Airport when his Shinn Skystreak single-engine plane ran out of gas. Shinn then made an emergency landing on the highway. He was not injured nor were there any accidents caused by the surprise landing.

"I thought I could make it," Shinn said. "Apparently I couldn't. I made sure the highway was clear and then landed on the pavement."

Shinn said he got his landing gear lowered just before touching down in the eastbound lane of the highway, east of Ind. 19. The Indiana State Police responded to a call at 11:44 a.m. of a plane crash or emergency landing. When state troopers arrived at the scene, they found that Shinn had made an emergency landing.

The right side landing gear folded after the plane touched down, sending it skidding into the grassy ditch on the side of the road.

In addition to the damage to the landing gear, there was minor damage to the front of the plane's fuselage and wings and the propeller was bent.

"It makes you a bit nervous," Shinn said. "But it was a good thing I had the shoulder strap and the seat belt. I'm fine, I didn't get hurt."

The plane could not be removed from the side of the road until the site was inspected by the Federal Aviation Administration. The FFA has to investigate every accident or incident involving a plane, according to Inspector Bob Helbing.

"The FFA gathers facts at the site and then we investigate back at our office in South Bend," Helbing said. "Then we turn it over to the (National Transportation Safety Board) and they come up with a probable cause."

Helbing said the investigation should not take too long because there was one, small, experimental craft involved.

Shinn designed and built the Skystreak about six years ago. He owns two other planes which he designed and built as well. He has had a pilot's license since 1945.

"I'll keep flying," Shin said. "Maybe not this plane for a while, but I'll keep flying."

ABRAHAM DEAL II, second son of Philip and Margaret Blose Deal, was born in Rockingham Co., Virginia, January 13, 1817. His childhood was that of any farmer's boy living at that time. Money was scarce since his father Philip had reverses of fortune, trusting too much to other peoples word. Despite these prevalent hardships many happy hours were spent coasting with his brothers on the mountain-sides in winter, and annoying fisherman in summer, by rolling great stones down the slopes in order to hear them rumble, then splash into the stream below.

In 1835 he left Rockingham Co., Virginia and went with his father and brothers to Preble Co. and then to Montgomery Co., OH. Abraham Deal II, like his brother Henry learned and followed the blacksmith trade for a number of years. He owned a blacksmith's brace belonging to his Great Grandfather Jacob Deal. The brace was made in Germany and was handed down to each son, who used it in his own blacksmith shop. When this history was written it was in the possession of Edgar Deal, son of Abraham Deal II, as was also an anvil pattern cast by Philip Deal in Dayton, Ohio, in 1837.

On January 16, 1840 he was married to Nancy Brown of Montgomery Co., Ohio. He afterwards moved to Champaign Co., where he resided until 1852, when he came to Indiana. He located in Somerset, Wabash Co.. In 1853 he moved to the farm which he owned at the time of his death. Here he resided until 1880 when he removed to Somerset. After a period of nine years he returned to the farm, where he lived one year before moving to South Wabash.

After the death of Nancy Brown Deal, August 28, 1892, he returned to the farm, where he resided at the time of his death, September 30, 1903, at the age of 86 years. His farm was in Wabash County in Waltz Twp. now a part of the Mississinewa Reservoir.

Dear Martha Jan,

Thank you for your note. It was the same Harold Robert Deal you know. Our son and other relatives plus Bob's sister live in Ft. Wayne.

Bob was diagnosed with cancer last March. He had Chemotherapy in April, May, June and July. It slowed the growth for a short time. He then took radiation but it was a fast growing cancer so didn't help much. It may have decreased the amount of pain he had. He steadily went down from Thanksgiving on. We were able to keep him pretty much painfree. I try to keep a Deal history up too. It does get difficult. I have a picture of your and your mother

HENRY ROSE DEAL, the youngest son of Philip and Margaret Blose Deal was born in Rockingham County, Virginia, August 10, 1821. He lived on a farm with his parents until he was eight years old. In 1829, his mother Margaret Blose Deal died, and Henry was sent to live with an Uncle on his mother's side, Henry Rose. While living with this uncle, Henry slept in a loft over the kitchen. The place was small and he could easily see out of the one rude window. One cold night he was awakened by streaks of light dashing by his window, stars fell and many people thought the world was coming to an end. Covering his head with the bed clothes and shivering with fright, he repeated to himself the prayer his mother had taught him. Mumbling this to himself he fell asleep and altho' the streaks of light were yet to be seen in the moring until the sun blotted them out, the prayer taught by a God fearing pioneer mother to her son, and soothed him, long after her conforting presence had been taken away.

The winter of 1829 was bitter and cold, and the snow several feet deep Grandfather Henry Deal, at the age of ten or eleven instead of being sent to school and cared for by his uncle was forced to take care of four head of horses and five cows. His clothes consisted of a thin pair of linsy pants, low shoes and socks made from his aunts old dresses. Henry Rose had one slave, a little negro boy, who was Grandfather Henry's adored companion and playmate. Henry Beigoy (?) a neighbor gave Grandfather Henry a beautiful hen for a present, since their names were the same. One Sabbath day his Uncle and Aunt went on a visit, leaving Bob, the negro and Henry to themselves for the day. Their dinner was to consist of a piece of bread for each, which had been left in the drawer of the kitchen table.

A cold winter day--two hungry boys with appetites becoming our reunion dinner, and only two pieces of bread. What reason for not thinking of the beautiful hen and the nest of golden eggs? With beating hearts, and grinning anticipation, the boys raided the nest, captured the eggs and feasted. Just as the skillet was being washed the uncle and aunt returned.

"What have you been doing, Henry, " asked the aunt.

Henry replied, "We ate our bread and were still hungry, so I got some of my hens eggs, and we fried and ate them."

The aunt seemed sympathetic but Henry Rose said, "never mind, boy, I*ll pay you for that".

Several days past, but Henry Rose did not forget. He had set times for everything, and at last Grandfather Henry was taken to the woodshed, stripped of his clothes and given a severe beating.

About this time Philip Deal, his father, married again, and Henry was taken home. The three boys, John, Abraham and Henry loved the new stepmother and her son Henry Heaston. He was not as strong as they and many times, they fought his battles for him, loving him as their own brother.

In 1835 Henry Deal left Rockingham County, Virginia with his father and settled in Preble County, Ohio. In the winter of 1837 he hired himself to a farmer, who allowed him to go school at Covington, Ohio, the first free school he had ever attended. In 1838 his father Philip took him to Montgomery County, Ohio, where he was taught the blacksmith trade. Henry worked for his brother, John at this trade until the spring of 1840, when he, having become discouraged, prepared to go west. He had no money, only a few receipts for tempering cast steel to sell. His father gave him one dollar, and in his own words it looked as big as a cart wheel to him. Henry came to Indiana and worked at the blacksmith trade in Liberty, Union County. Here he met with an accident, a horse kicking him,. which made it necessary for him to go home.

Her father John Apple born 1782 son of John born 1752 son of William born 1713 son of Conrad 1662

When he arrived home in Montgomery County, Ohio, he found that his brother John had been hurt, so he put out his wheat crop for him.

In 1842 Henry Deal was married to Mary Catherine Apple of Montgomery County, Ohio. In the fall of 1844 they borrowed $50 and set up a blacksmith Shop three miles south of Dayton, Ohio. In this place he accumulated a little property, but, later he moved in 1846 to Champaign County, Ohio, where he carried on the blacksmith trade for seven years. Here he bought 33 acres of cleared ground and built a house and barn. In 1853 he sold this farm for $1000 and moved to Wabash County, Indiana, where he bought 91 acres of land in Waltz Township, eight miles south of Wabash, for $1170 cash. Later he added 25 acres more. He rolled logs, cleared ground and built a frame house and barn, all the time carrying on the trade of blacksmith on the side.

Henry Deal, like his father Philip, made poor investments, trusted too much in other people and signed notes which finally lost him practically his whole farm. In 1874 he sold what was left of his farm in Waltz Township and bought a small place in Miami County.

He lived here until the death of Catherine Apple Deal, in 1885, after which he made his home with his children, except when away at work at his trade.

A few years before his death he made a trip to Virginia, where he spent some time visiting the scenes of his childhood. His death occurred at the home of his son Albert, March 21. 1894, his age being 72 years. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Daniel Markley of Wabash, and burial was in Paw Paw Cemetery, Miami County, Indiana.

(Note by Martha Jane Biehl--he died at the home of my grandfather. Aunt Lulu Denney said he told her many of the things about his life and her father, Albert also related them. I have a daybook in my possession that Henry Deal wrote many things also)

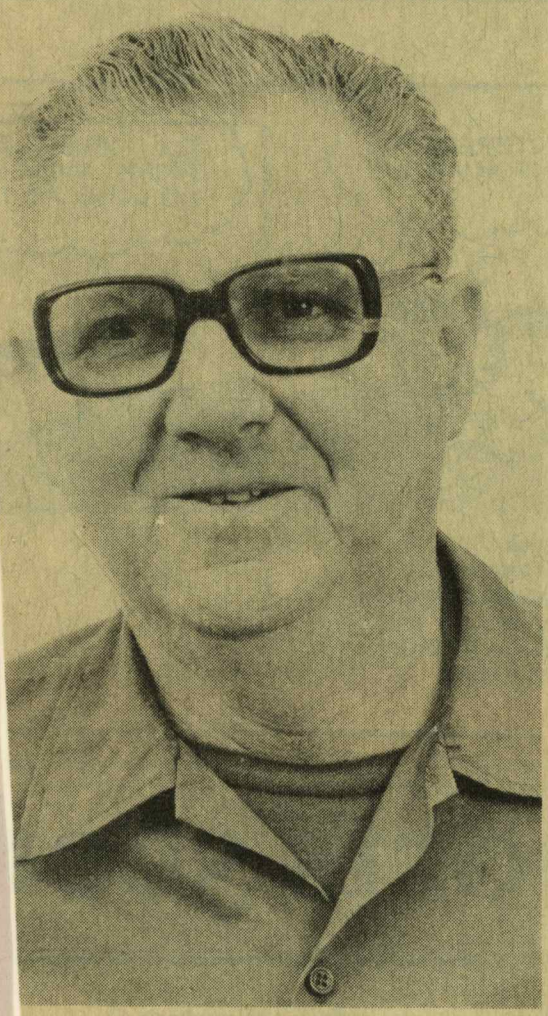
Bill Davenport 1980



When the Plain Dealer moved from the corner of Wabash and Canal streets to its present location at 123 W. Canal St. nobody was happier than custodian Bill Davenport.

Bill's hobby is working in his garden patch at his home northeast of Lagro. So he was thrilled when he got the chance to take care of the landscaping outside the new Plain Dealer buidling.

Taking care of the old PD landscape meant sweeping the sidewalks. Now Bill enjoys trimming the shrubbery, mowing the grass and pruning the trees that adorn the new PD landscape.

Of course, Bill spends most his time keeping things tidy and in tip-top shape inside the Plain Dealer building. That's a job he's being doing well since June, 1965.

A native of Constantine, Mich., Bill, 57, has lived in Wabash County since his parents moved here when he was 11. He and his wife, the former Naomi Jane Sailors of Wabash, have lived in or around Lagro for the past 25 years.

Naomi also works part-time at the Plain Dealer in the advertising department.

The Davenports have seven children ranging in age from 28 to 19. The oldest, Dale, lives in Louisa, Va. Dave, Mark and John, the youngest, are still at home. Darrell and Marilyn live in Wabash and Dean lives in Logansport.

During World War II, Bill spent three years in the U.S. Army with the 11th Airborne Division in the Pacific Theatre.

Trinity Episcopal Church Setting For Deal-Knight Exchange of Vows

Trinity Episcopal Church was the setting late Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Alice Knight to Gene Norman Deal. Reverend L. O. Ison officiated at the double ring ceremony, with the Right Reverend W. P. Remington of Rancho Santa Fe giving the blessing.

The church was decorated with large baskets of white gladioli, China mums, delphinium, stock, carnations, daisies, baby's breath and fern. The front of the altar was decorated with white gladioli, stock, carnations and baby's breath.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Knight of Escondido and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Deal of San Pasqual are parents of the bridegroom.

For her wedding, the bride chose a floor length silk organza gown with a square embroidered neckline and short sleeves. Silk organza embroidery was also on the bodice and the middle of the skirt. Her Swedish floral crown of tiny pearls interspersed with flowers held her elbow-length veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses and sweetheart ivory, which also contained the bluebird of happiness and a ring. She wore a single strand of pearls and earrings, a gift from the bridegroom. They formerly belonged to Mrs. Ada Rockwood, grandmother of the bridegroom and long-time resident of Escondido.

Pink and Green

Mrs. David Moorhouse of Gardena served as matron of honor. She was gowned in a silk organza ballerina length dress in two shades of green. She wore a dark green bandeau with a short face veil and carried a cascade bouquet of pink sensation roses and green tulle. Miss Beth Haley and Miss Sheila Gray of San Gabriel served as bridesmaids. They were dressed in style identical to that of the honor matron's, but were in two shades of pink. They carried nosegays of red garnet roses and pale pink tulle.

Jerry Deal served his brother as best man. Ushers were Darwin Atkins of Lindsey and Larry Gilbert of Imperial.

Organist was Mrs. J. Lawrence Dawson, with Mrs. C. D. Wycliffe as solosist. She sang, "O Perfect Love."

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Haley. Approximately 100 guests were present. The bride's mother chose a beige lace and silk organza gown with a full skirt and matching hat. She added bone accessories and a corsage of white butterfly and yellow roses to her ensemble. The bridegroom's mother chose a beige lace sheath dress with matching accesories and a corsage of Parres roses.

Assist at Reception

Vases of white and pink gladioli, stock and Bells of Ireland were placed before the fireplaces in the family room and living room of the home. PAUL BERNARD SCHEIPS

Paul Bernard Scheips, the youngest of five sons in a family of ten children who reached maturity, was born to Ernst Heinrich and Marie Louise Nolte Scheips in Hobart, Indiana, on the eighth of April, 1889. As his parents' names suggest, he came from the kind of solid German-American stock which has contributed so much to this land to which, in former years, when our people were less fearful and perhaps wiser and more humanitarian, immigrants came in a flood without hindrance to build better homes for themselves and in the process to build a great nation. Hobart was then, as now, but a small town in northwestern Indiana. To the Reverend E. H. Scheips, a minister of the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church, it was a way station between his circuit-riding days in Iowa and his pastorate in Peru, Indiana, which was to be the major charge of his life.

It was in Peru, on the banks of the Wabash, that Paul was to spend his youthful years. Like many boys, he worked part-time. As a minister's son he had the special responsibility and the very special fun, on Sundays, of ringing the church bell which could lift small boys off the floor. In the process of growing up, Paul attended the Lutheran parochial school in Peru and both there and at home became fluent in the German language. In high school he distinguished himself and then went off to attend Indiana University in Bloomington. There he was excused from German because he was fluent in it and from geometry because the professor thought he was fluent in it. There, too, to pay his way, he cut grass and performed other chores. Lack of funds took him away, and as time went by a desire to marry the sweetest girl in the world kept him away, from his scholarly pursuits and he did not complete his education at the university. All his life, though, he had a great respect for books and learning and he read a great deal. His education gave him a first-rate command of the English language which he could handle extremely well in both its written and spoken forms. Though as he grew older he seldom wrote more than the letters his business demanded in which he did not exercise his feel for the language, he delighted his family and his friends with the many well-told stories which grew out of the experiences of his lifetime.

Paul's life was spent in the food business--in the grocery business in Peru, then later in the delicatessen and restaurant businesses in Evansville. His customers were his friends, and his liking for them was uniformly reciprocated. This was fortunate, because for much of his life his business hours, shared by his dear wife, were long hours. That he could combine business with pleasure gave him a social life that was rich and full, and full of ripe friendships. It was always a joy when the work was hardest, and it was often hard. His business had its ups and downs---with probably more downs than ups.

On the second of December, 1913, after a loving courtship in which youthful poetry helped pave the way, Paul married his girl, Cleo Reatha Keim, who, like her husband, was of German-American extraction. To this union there were born, in Peru, two children---first, Paul Joseph, and then, four years later, Betty Louise. These children were both equally the apple of his eye and he was to them a father to love and cherish to their dying days. He fed and clothed them and sent them to school, and regardless of their growing up they were still his children who were to be helped to the limits of his ability. With them he exulted in their little victories and suffered when they met life's little defeats. He did not always agree with his children as they grew older and developed minds of their own, but he seldom failed to treat them as individuals with the rights of individuals. He was a real father.

For his wife, Cleo---in talking to his children he always referred to her as "Mother"---Paul had a deep and abiding affection. For years they worked in their business side by side and together made their business reputation and their friends. They were mutually dependent and neither ever failed the other. Their life together had its many vicissitudes, but it had its victories to be remembered and it always had its love that triumphed over irritations and troubles. This love can never be erased.

About 1923/24

In the early twenties, at one of those points that mark the lives of all of us, Paul moved his family to Evansville, where his children grew up, went to school, and set out to establish their own patterns of living. They both married and the son-in-law, William Henry Klusmeier, and the daughter-in-law, Alice Cole Scheips, were warmly and eagerly accepted as a part of the intimate family circle. At home with his family and his friends, Paul was happy and content. A little more than three years ago, Betty and Bill adopted little William Barton, who brought to Paul the joys of grandparenthood which he relished to the fullest. Bartie became another apple of his eye and loved his grandfather in return.

Meanwhile, as the transition was being made from the delicatessen to the restaurant business, Paul and Cleo bought a home on Mt. Auburn Road and there, amid the flowers, shrubs, and trees that so delighted him, Paul gardened and enjoyed a more leisurely existence than had ever before been possible for him. He was proud of his home and deeply and contentedly happy in it. There he spent his last days.

Paul, like his parents and his brothers and sisters, was a lifelong Lutheran. For spiritual sustenance he read a well-worn copy of the New Testament which he had had and treasured since his youth, and which he kept in a drawer of his desk as his office. This was much read. It can be said without equivocation that he was a Christian in the best sense of the term. He was an example to be emulated.

Paul was 63 years old at the time of his death on the twenty-sixth of September, 1952. He led a full and good and quietly courageous life, but the worth of such a man cannot be measured in mere words. The task is too great; indeed, it is impossible. It can be measured only in the hearts and minds of those who knew and loved him and whose lives were made richer and more significant for having known him. They know his worth and they know that the world is a poorer place without him. They will remember and honor him so long as they live.

SHELVES OF DELICATESSEN FORM "LEAGUE OF NATIONS" OF FOODS Expensive and aromatic cheeses, creamy french pastries, spicy stuffed olives, tiny, pearl-like unions, rare persian honey .... these and hundreds of other delectable dainties which put the finishing touches to a fine meal are available at any delicatessen.

The sale of these rather expensive morsels is not heavy but there is a steady demand for them the year round according to Paul B. Scheips, who operates one of Evansville's largest delicatessens.
The shelves of Mr. Scheips' store have nearly every country in the world repressented by some food. There are cheeses from Italy, France, England; olives from Spain; fish roe from Portugal; sardines from Norway; honey from Arabia and Persia; and rare teas from India and China in handcarved containers from Russia, to mention just a few.
One of the most renowned aromatic cheese is limburger, but Mr. Scheips says several others are equally as popular. The big three of the cheese world are goronzola from Italy, roquefort from France and stilton from England. The article continues....

Other works in the pipeline are a volumn to be published by the U. S. Arny, which is now being edited, on the Army's role in civil disturbances, 1945 to the 1990s. Also he is colabrating with Ms. Rebecca Raine, on preparing for publication a biography of Albert J. Myer, founder of the Army Signal Corps and a founder of what became the U. S. Weather Bureau.

DISTINGUISHED MEMBER OF THE REGIMENT BIOGRAPHY Dr. Paul Scheips has dedicated his professional life (46 years) to documenting and preserving the U.S. Army Signal Regiment's history. His contributions range from a two-volume biography of the corps' founder, Albert J. Myer, to many books and articles covering regimental heraldry, lineage and honors, notable individuals and unit histories. He has donated 135 of his works to the Signal Center's archives.

In addition to his professional writings, Dr. Scheips mentored and nurtured a second generation of Signal Corps historians in Dr. Carol Stokes, former Signal Center command historian, and Ms. Rebecca Raines at the Army's Center of Military History. For more than 20 years Dr. Scheips encouraged, instructed and freely shared his immense knowledge of the Signal Corps with Dr. Stokes, Ms. Raines and others. As the designated branch historian, in 1984 Dr. Scheips guided Dr. Stokes through her early years as her office produced the corps' first documented histories – including A Concise History of the U.S. Army Signal Corps, Signal Corps Recipients of the Medal of Honor and The Signal Corps and the U.S. Army Regimental System. Ms. Raines, who is responsible for recording Signal Corps lineage and honors at the Center of Military History, benefited from Scheips' selfless dedication to the Regiment when he made his manuscripts available to her to prepare her branch history, Getting the Message Through. In her preface Ms. Raines acknowledges "an enormous debt" to Dr. Scheips, "the dean of Signal Corps historians."

In retirement, Dr. Scheips continues to support the historical program. Frequently a guest lecturer at the Signal Center, Dr. Scheips has always been available to those seeking knowledge of the Signal Regiment.

Dr. Scheips' credentials include degrees from Evansville College and the University of Chicago. He was awarded a doctorate at American University following acceptance of his dissertation, Albert James Myer, Founder of the Army Signal Corps. He is a fellow of the American Military Institute, listed in Directory of American Scholars and recipient of the Regiment's Silver Order of Mercury. The Signal Regiment inducted Dr. Scheips as a Distinguished Member in 1998.

He also wrote extensively about the Signal Corps, including a two-volume study of the corps' founder, Albert J. Myer. Dr. Scheips was inducted as an honorary member of the Army Signal Regiment in 1998.

He worked 38 years for the Defense Department, principally the Center of Military History, before retiring in 1989 as chief of its staff support branch.

Dr. Scheips was an Indiana native and a graduate of the University of Evansville. He received a master's degree in history from the University of Chicago and a doctorate in history from American University.

He began his career as a history instructor, teaching at Denison University in Granville, Ohio, the University of Michigan and University of Maryland.

During his career at the Defense Department, he pursued his other interests in U.S. history with studies on the Panama Canal and leaders of the Old West.

In 1971, the Smithsonian Institution published his study on the many adaptations of the Civil War song "Hold the Fort."

He was a member of the American Military Institute, the Society of History in the Federal Government, the National Council on Public History, the U.S. Commission on Military History and the Society of American Archivists.

Survivors include his wife of 58 years, Alice Cole Scheips of Silver Spring.

In memoriam: Dr. Paul Scheips, 1914-2002 by Rebecca Robbins Raines

The Signal Regiment lost one of its most distinguished citizens with the death of Dr. Paul Scheips Sept. 29, just a few weeks before his 88th birthday. Scheips is perhaps best known for his landmark study of the life and career of Albert James Myer, father of the U.S. Army Signal Corps. With this work, which he completed as his doctoral dissertation, and his many other studies on various aspects of Signal history, Scheips laid the foundation for current scholarship on the Signal Corps. We all owe him a tremendous debt of gratitude.

Scheips was a superb historian, but he was much more than that. He was a gentleman and a scholar in the truest sense of those words. He was a man of great compassion and deep conviction, with an unyielding dedication to truth and accuracy. Yet as a colleague and mentor, he was unfailingly generous with his time and the fruits of his labors. He was never too busy to discuss works in progress with other historians and always had many suggestions for further research. He graciously lent volumes from his vast library and frequently shared items of interest that had come to his attention. He never stopped learning and remained intellectually vigorous to the end of his life.

Scheips was a native of Peru, Ind., and received his undergraduate education at Evansville College (now the University of Evansville). He earned his master's degree from the University of Chicago in 1949 and his doctorate from The American University in 1966. Early in his career, he taught at the University of Michigan and Denison University. Though he eventually left the classroom to become a civil servant, he never stopped teaching. In 1952 he joined the Signal Corps Historical Division, where he spent the next 10 years. There he authored a number of studies and participated in the celebration of the Signal Corps' centennial in 1960.

With the closure of the Signal Corps' history office in 1962, Scheips joined the staff of the Office of the Chief of Military History in Washington, D.C. (now known as the U.S. Army Center of Military History). As a member of its Histories Division, he produced a wide array of studies and contributed to many of the center's publications, including American Military History (1973) and Department of the Army Annual Historical Summary, 1981. His name can be found in the acknowledgments of many authors to whose works he lent his expertise.

Although Scheips retired in 1986, he remained actively engaged in scholarly pursuits. He continued his long-standing relationship with Fort Gordon, Ga., where he was a frequent and popular lecturer. At the time of his death, he was working on the third volume in the U.S. Army Military History Center's series on the Army and its use during civil disturbances. This volume, The Role of Federal Forces in Domestic Disorders, 1950-1990, is scheduled for publication during the coming year.

While Scheips is most closely associated with Myer, he was also responsible for rescuing the papers of another prominent Chief Signal Officer, MG Adolphus Greely. He discovered the documents in the attic of Greely's daughter's house in New Hampshire, where they were in imminent danger of being irreparably damaged and lost. Scheips was instrumental in arranging the donation of the Greely collection to the Library of Congress, where it now resides in the Manuscripts Division.

Scheips was an active participant in a wide variety of professional organizations, including the American Historical Association, the Society for Military History, the National Council on Public History, the Society for History in the Federal Government and the Western Historical Association.

In addition to his abiding interest in the Signal Corps, he researched and wrote extensively on a number of subjects, among them the history of the Panama Canal, civil-military relations and the American West.

In recognition of his pivotal role in preserving and documenting the Signal Corps' history, Scheips received the Silver Order of Mercury from the Signal Corps Regimental Association, a private organization that supports the Signal Regiment. In 1998 he was designated a Distinguished Member of the Signal Regiment.

Scheips and his wife, Alice Cole Scheips, enjoyed traveling, especially with fellow members of the Cosmos Club. He was a proud member of this organization, which has been a gathering place for Washington's intellectuals for more than a century. He contributed many fine articles to its bulletin, specializing in profiles of former members, such as Greely. It was a special treat to join the Scheips for a meal in the club's beautiful dining room to enjoy an unforgettable combination of delicious food, congenial company and stimulating conversation.

Those who were fortunate enough to have known Paul Scheips will always remember him with the greatest fondness and admiration. With his passing, we've lost a dear friend and the Signal Corps a true champion. His absence will be deeply felt, but he has left us much to remember him by.

Ms. Raines is chief of the Force Structure and Unit History Branch, U.S. Army Center of Military History, Washington, D.C. Scheips served as her mentor at the center and provided invaluable assistance and encouragement for her volume, Getting the Message Through: A Branch History of the U.S. Army Signal Corps (1996). Most recently she was collaborating with Scheips on a full-length biography of Myer.

In Memoriam

Joseph Lincoln Keim

The following words were read at the funeral service of Joseph Lincoln Keim by the Reverend Mr. D. O. Wise of the First Evangelical church of Peru, Indiana, the twenty-third of December 1943.

JOSEPH LINCOLN KEIM

JOSEPH LINCOLN KEIM, who died in Evansville, Indiana, on the twentieth of December 1943, was a resident of Peru and Miami county almost his entire life. Although he went to Evansville some eight years ago to live with his daughter and son-in-law, he repeatedly made trips to Peru in order that he might visit his old friends and remaining relatives. He last visited Peru in the spring of 1942, making the trip wholly unaccompanied as was his wont. Here in Peru he had married and reared his children. Here he had worked hard, being for long years the chief custodian of the Peru public schools. Here he had spent a full life, having given of his best to his family, his church and his community. Here was his heart.

"Joe," as he was called by his friends and dear wife, "Grandad," as he was lovingly called by the rest of his family, was born in a log cabin on the Sante Fé pike in Miami county, Indiana, of Pennsylvania-Dutch stock, on the tenth of February 1861, the youngest son of Samuel and Mary Derck Keim. He was the last of a family of twelve children.

On the thirteenth of December 1883 he married Ellen Charlotta Deal, with whom he lived a long and happy life. He was privileged, indeed, to celebrate with her their golden wedding anniversary in 1933, this privilege being of a kind not given to the many. "Aunt Ellen," or "Grandmother," memory of whom is as imperishable as any memory could be, died on St. Patrick's day, 1935.

Two children were born to the union of Joseph Lincoln Keim and Ellen Charlotta Deal: Cleo Reatha Scheips of Evansville, Indiana, and Oran Smith Keim of Rochester, Indiana. Four grandchildren cherish innumerable memories of two of the finest grandparents this world has known. Three of these are now married: Margaret Cleo Redding and Ellen Rowene Hargraves, both now of Pensacola, Florida, and Betty Louise Klusmeier, now of Greensboro, North Carolina. The eldest grandchild, still unmarried, is Paul Joseph Scheips, now living in Granville, Ohio. Tommy Marshall Hargraves, son of Ellen Rowene Hargraves, is a great grandchild. The memory of Joseph Lincoln Keim will live on, too, in the minds of Paul Bernard A. Scheips and Eva Keim, the devoted life partners of his children.

For many years Joe Keim was a member of the First Baptist church of Peru. On its board of deacons he served faithfully and well. After going to Evansville some years ago, however, he decided to transfer his church affiliation to the First Evangelical church of that city. In the face of a lifetime membership in the Baptist church this transfer required determination of purpose.

It required genuine moral courage. Decided upon, it was effected with dispatch.

Indeed, Joe Keim faced all the problems of a long life with courage. He was a man. He walked humbly before God, he was a good citizen, a friend of the many, a loving father, a faithful husband and a dear grandparent. No more virtuous example could be set by any man. Those he leaves behind will be eternally grateful to him for the goodness which in him they knew. They can but do their best to cherish, protect and pass on this goodness which characterized every word, every act, of his long and extremely useful life.

Goodby dear Friend, dear Father, dear Grandad. Godspeed!

These words were written by Paul Joseph Scheips in Peru, Indiana, the twenty-second of December 1943.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul. He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies thou anointest my head with oil: my cup runneth over:

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Dear Martha Jane

It was good of you to write me in response to the change-of-address card I sent you. It's hard to believe that it was fifteen years ago when you were here in Maryland, and we were glad to see you — and glad to hear from you.

Thanks to you too for the 1912 photograph that you sent me from your album. It reminds me that I have literally hundreds of photographs which I neglected to identify when putting them in albums — or whenever I put them, and that I am going to have to destroy your photo is a good picture of my father then a young man, and of Lulu — or even younger person! — and of Lulu, we were always very fond of Lulu, my memory is not very good. I know that Lulu was one of my mother's cousins, but I don't remember who her father was. And who was your father? One of my fondest memories of my youth was visiting the Deals in the Wabash area.

My sister Betty Kruesmeier, who is four years younger than I, lives in Kerrville, Texas, 78028-9707, on 29 Oakway, R. 3. She would be glad to hear from you sometime. Her husband, Bill Klusmeier, died several years ago and she gets very lonesome. You have a good memory. Her son, William Burton Klusmeier, is indeed adopted. And he has two children, Sara and Steven, now both grown. He lives in Rockford, Illinois, where Betty used to live. He and his wife will be visiting Betty around Thanksgiving. Betty much looks forward to his annual visits.

My Uncle Oran Kling had two children, Margaret and Rowena. Both are now deceased. Margaret had no children, but Rowena had two, one of whom is deceased and the other of whom, Tom, lives in Pensacola, Florida.

Congratulations to both you and Ellen on your recent 50th wedding anniversary. Alice and I, who were divorced in the 1940s and then re-married in 1974, just had a 57th anniversary on August 27, 2001. Re-marriage has been a good move!

You must be quite proud of your large family and their college work and other school records.

I retired in 1986, the year you and Ellen came to Washington. Since retirement I have been occupied, among other things, with a book I have written for my old Army agency, which is now being edited. It may be published yet this year. It's on the Army's role in civil disturbances during the civil rights and anti-Vietnam War movements. I am also collaborating with a friend of mine in getting my doctoral dissertation ready for publication. It is a biography of Albert Myer the founder of the Army Signal Corps and one of the founders of what became the Weather Bureau. Alice and I have also done some traveling.

You and Eldon seem to be quite busy in your church and other activities. I dare say you find your genealogical work quite absorbing. Did you ever get update Lulu's work? Did he pleased to have a copy.

Again, it was good to hear from you. I'd like to keep in touch. And please give Eldon my best regards.

Sincerely,

Paul

The following is a theme written by Martha Jane Stouffer probably during her senior year in high school about the Deal history. It is based on the material that Henry Rose Deal and Lulu (Deal) Denney provided.

HISTORY OF THE JACOB DIEHL FAMILY

MARTHA-JANE-STOUFFER

History of the Jacob Diehl Family

"Woulds't thou trust thy name to dumb forgetfulness, or to the decaying graveyard stone? Nay, rather place it on the pages of the printed book."

It was the above quotation that caught my interest. Inscribed on the fly leaf of an old record book, kept by my Great Grandfather Henry Deal, it challenged me to read, and as I read--I thought--"part of me lived, planned, failed, succeeded 175 years ago, when Jacob Diehl, my fifth Great Grandfather back, left Rotterdam, Holland, and sailed on the Ship Minerva, landing in Philadelphia, October 13, 1769."

It is to my Great Grandfather Henry Rose Deal, that we are indebted for this family history, for it was he who, on January 8, 1861, old, feeble, restless and unable to work, wrote a memoir of the Deal family, stating by way of preface that he had written it for the benefit of his children, which would "perhaps be more satisfaction to them than a photograph", as I can readily attest, otherwise where would I have gotten material for this theme?

Love of fame, the desire to enlarge their dominion, eager to sway the sceptre over subjugated nations, influenced the ancient Germans to leave their hearths, and to achieve conquests, thus proving themselves in days of yore, "Herren der Welt", Lords of the World.

At different periods, various causes and diverse motives induced them to abandon their Vaterland.

Religious persecution and political oppression drove thousands to Pennsylvania. From 1682 to 1776, Pennsylvania was the central point of immigration from Germany.

In 1765, a number of German Reformed and German Luthern fled to Danish Prussia, where they remained some time, then went to Holland.

The ancestors of Jacob Diehl, my Great, Great, Great, Great Grandfather were among these German immigrants.

On the ship's record we find he signed Deal "Diehl", in English script, using one German script letter, showing that Jacob Diehl was not an uneducated German immigrant since few at that time could write both English and German.

A note attached to the record states that an English clerk on the boat changed the spelling of several names. Diehl was listed as one of the names with changed spelling.

Grandfather Jacob settled in Lancaster Co., Pennsylvania, with his French wife and son, Abraham. It is through his record as a Revolutionary soldier that I am eligible to the D. A. R. He died in 1786.

Jacob Diehl may have had other children, but we know only of Abraham Deal.

Abraham Deal was probably ten or twelve years old when he landed in Philadelphia, with his father and mother in October, 1769.

As a child he learned the trade of a nailer, a smith who forged nails from wrought iron. This became a profitable trade, since nails were very much in demand by the settler, who used them to build their rude houses and put together rough wagons. The military records show that Abraham settled in Lancaster county with his father, Jacob. Sometime after 1782, he moved into the adjoining county of York, where he plied his trade and reared his family of six children. Great, Great, Great Grandfather Abraham Deal was a stalwart German, the son of an immigrant, who had the courage to leave his native land and risk the hardships of the pioneer in a new and unsettled country. He belonged to the Dunkard church. My three Great, Great Aunts, Catherine, Christina, and Elizabeth, and also my Great, Great Uncles, Abraham and John, together with my Great, Great Grandfather Philip told of many a weary hour on Sunday morning when they tried to sit quietly on a rude hard church bench, under the austere gaze of Great, Great, Great Grandfather Abraham, as they listened to a lengthy sermon on "Damnation".

About 1800-1801, Abraham took his family of six children and migrated in wagons constructed of hand hewn boards and nails wrought in his own blacksmith shop, to Rockingham County, Virginia. Here he took up land, and became a farmer, using his trade of smith as means of additional financial aid to a large family. Abraham Deal died in 1825, at the age of 66.

Great, Great Grandfather Philip Deal was ten years old when he settled with his father in Rockingham County, Virginia. From early childhood, he worked diligently on the farm with his father. As he grew older and could assume the responsibility of long hard trips over mountainous roads, he was sent to Richmond, Fredericksburg, and Lynchburg, Virginia, and even to Nashville, Tennessee, the principle markets at that time, with loads of flour, bacon and clover seed. Returning he brought back store goods, or plaster paris, fish or salt.

Our great, great grandmother died about 1807-1809, leaving her family to the rigors of pioneer existence. Philip was apprenticed to a blacksmith, by the name of Michael Ehrman.

In 1811, Philip Deal was married to Margaret Blose, daughter of George Blose of Shennandoah Co., Virginia.

Margaret Blose Deal, who became my great, great grandmother, was a remarkable pioneer wife and mother. Living at a time when there were no conveniences and very little money, when the country was in the midst of the war of 1812, she still had time to instill into the hearts of her three sons, John, Abraham and my Great Grandfather Henry, the rudiments of religion, and to teach each of them a simple prayer, which according to my Great Grandfather's memoirs served to help him through many difficult times of his childhood and the trying years of his latter life. Because of Due to the hardships of rearing her three sons, her health failed and she died in 1829.

In 1831, Great Grandfather Philip Deal married a second wife, Magdalena Heaston, who according to her step children was an exemplary woman. She died in a short time, so Great Grandfather Philip, with his three motherless sons prepared to go west, to the state of Ohio.

In the fall of 1836, having accumulated sufficient money, and a good two horse team, they started by covered wagon to go five hundred miles from friends and relatives.

The neighbors gave them a grand farewell gathering to see them start. Among many tears, and hearty handclasps and "God Bless Yours", Great, Great Grandfather Philip, too touched to speak without tears, climbed upon his seat, cracked his whip and the sorrowful little party started, with my Great Grandfather Henry, the youngest, hugging close in his arms his favorite little dog.

After four weeks of hard traveling they arrived in Preble County, Ohio. Here Philip took up 160 acres of land. The deed which was signed by President Martin Van Buren is now in my possession.

In 1840, Philip Deal married a third time. We have no record of this marriage except that this stepmother was not popular with Philip's children, as the former one had been. From this time until death, Philip Deal owned and operated a small store and blacksmith shop in Middletown, Butler County, Ohio.

He died June 21, 1845, and is buried in Middletown, Butler County, Ohio. Great Grandfather Philip Deal and his oldest son John were buried on the same day. My Great, Great Uncle Abraham attended the brother's funeral and Great Grandfather Henry the father's. The brother's before leaving Ohio, for Indiana, erected a monument at their father's grave which bears the following inscription.

Philip Deal

Born March 24, 1794

Died June 21, 1845

Age 51 years 2 months 27 days.

Great Grandfather Henry R. Deal, the youngest son of Philip and Margaret Blose Deal was born in Rockingham County, Virginia, August 10, 1821. He lived on a farm with his parents until he was eight years old. In 1829, his mother Margaret Blose Deal died, and Henry was sent to live with an uncle on his mother's side, Henry Rose. While living with this uncle, Henry slept in a loft over the kitchen. The place was small and he could easily see out of the one rude window. One cold night he was awakened by streaks of light dashing by his window. Stars fell and many people thought the world was coming to an end. Covering his head with the bed clothes and shivering with fright, he repeated to himself the prayer his mother had taught him. Mumbling this to himself he fell asleep and although the streaks of light were yet to be seen in the morning until the sun blotted them out, the prayer taught by a God fearing pioneer mother to her son, had soothed him, long after her comforting presence had been taken away.

The winter of 1829, was bitter and cold, and the snow was several feet deep. Grandfather Henry Deal, at the age of ten or eleven instead of being sent to school and cared for by his uncle, was forced to take care of four head of horses and five cows. His clothes consisted of a thin pair of linsy pants, low shoes and socks made from his aunts old dresses. Henry Rose had one slave, a little negro boy, who was Grandfather Henry's adored companion and playmate. Henry Beigoy, a neighbor, gave Grandfather Henry a beautiful hen for a present, since their names were the same. One Sabbath day his uncle and aunt went on a visit, leaving Bob, the negro and Henry to themselves for the day. Their dinner was to consist of a piece of bread for each, which had been left in the drawer of the kitchen table.

A cold winter day--two hungry boys with appetites becoming our reunion dinner, and only two pieces of bread. What reason for not thinking of the beautiful hen and the nest of golden eggs? With beating hearts, and grinning anticipation, the boys raided the nest, captured the eggs and feasted. Just as the skillet was being washed the uncle and aunt returned.

"What have you been doing, Henry," asked the aunt?

Henry replied, "We ate our bread and were still hungry, so I got some of the hens eggs, and we fried and ate them."

The aunt seemed sympathetic but Henry Rose said, "Never mind, boy, I'll pay you for that".

Several days past, but Henry Rose did not forget. He had set times for everything, and at last Grandfather Henry was taken to the woodshed striped of his clothes and given a severe beating.

About this time Philip Deal, his father, married again, and Henry was taken home. The three boys Jdn, Abraham and Henry loved the new stepmother and her son Henry Heaston. He was not as strong as they and many times, they fought his battles for him, loving him as their own brother.

In 1835, Henry Deal left Rockingham County, Virginia, with his father and settled in Preble County, Ohio. In the winter of 1837, he hired himself to a farmer, who allowed him to go to school at Covington, Ohio, the first free school he had ever attended. In 1838, his father, Philip, took him to Montgomery County, Ohio, where he was taught the blacksmith trade. Henry worked for his brother John at this trade until the spring of 1840, when he, having become discouraged, prepared to go west. He had no money, only a few receipts for tempering cast steel to sell. His father gave him one dollar, and in his own words it looked as big as a cart wheel to him. Henry came to Indiana and worked at the blacksmith trade in Liberty, Marion County. Here he met with an accident, a horse kicking him, which made it necessary for him to go home.

When he arrived home in Montgomery County, Ohio, he found that his brother John had been hurt, so he put out his wheat crop for him.

In 1843, Henry Deal was married to Catherine Apple of Montgomery County, Ohio. In the fall of 1844, they borrowed $50 and set up a blacksmith shop three miles south of Dayton, Ohio. In this place he accumulated a little property, but later he moved into Montgomery County, Ohio, where he carried on the blacksmith trade for seven years. Here he bought 33 acres of cleared ground and built a house and barn. In 1853, he sold this farm for $1000 and moved to Wabash county, Indiana, where he bought 91 acres of land in Waltz Township, eight miles south of Wabash, for $1170 cash. Later he added 25 acres more. He rolled logs, cleared ground and built a frame house and barn, all the time carrying on the trade of blacksmith on the side.

Henry Deal, like his father Philip, made poor investments, trusted too much in other people and signed notes which finally lost him practically his whole farm. In 1874, he sold what was left of his farm in Waltz Township and bought a small place in Paw Paw Township, Miami County.

He lived here until the death of Catherine Apple Deal in 1885, after which he made his home with his son Albert, my grandfather, except when away at work at his trade.

A few years before his death he made a trip to Virginia, where he spent some time visiting the scenes of his childhood. His death occurred March 21, 1894, at the age of 72 years.

Albert Deal, youngest son of Henry R. and Catherine Apple Deal was born October 31, 1859. On January 1, 1885, he was married to Jessie Butler Zinn, who died January 1, 1895. To this union two children were born, namely, my mother, Cora, and my aunt, Lulu.

Cora Deal, oldest daughter of Albert and Jessie Zinn Deal was married to Everett Stouffer on May 9, 1922. To this union one child was born, namely, Martha Jane Stouffer, author of this theme.

All of the letters, war records and wills incident to this family history are in my possession. I have loved to read them, since early childhood, and sometime will take a trip to the Pennsylvania State Library, and read these records in the original.
