f "Tonight is our night," Dedra Biehl told her fellow Northfield graduates Friday evening. "It is about closing the last chapter of our life here at Northfield, but more importantly it is about a new beginning."

The address was one of several featured talks at commencement ceremonies for the Class of 1998 in the high school gym. The gym was crowded with parents, friends, faculty and staff.

Miss Biehl, valedictorian for the 102 graduates, continued the book metaphor as she spoke of her hopes for the portion now to be written: "As we open yet another chapter in our lives, it is desirable that we be able to record upon its pages moments of love, ambition, honesty and courage.

"Live for today, but plan for tomorrow ... Life is comprised of intricate situations which may pull at our patience and understanding. However, we must never lose hope, and we must continually strive to reach our fullest potential and do so with a courageous heart."

At one point Miss Biehl used a tree metaphor to mark this place in time for herself and the others:

"As a group, we have been educated in a similar fashion up to this date, May 22, 1998. Now the tree begins to take shape as the class of 1998 grows and disperses from our common roots into many branches all heading in different directions."

And her advice to classmates?

"Dream on a larger scale than normal and keep your life in focus. Let no fear overcome your ability to reason, try, love, or to collect memories."

The salutatorian addresses were given by Susan Satchwill and Joseph Vass.

Miss Satchwill, using slides as a visual aid, invited her classmates to "take a trip back down the halls with me."

While retracing the passage of the years, Miss Satchwill identified some of the missions Northfield has performed:

- It has provided a place to change — "who we were into who we are today. We've established our individuality, our own sense of style sometime while we were within these halls."
- It has taught a few lessons: "'Stress' was a word I heard often, and there were a fair amount of classroom battles. Whether you crammed or studied diligently every night, something surely has stuck."
- It has prepared students for the future: "Some of the lessons we've learned here will be what we base our careers on ... May not only financial but domestic happiness as well be in your stars."

To her classmates she said, "Guard and treasure your memories of high school, for if life's a dance, these years were just the first steps."

She closed by thanking those who kept her feet on the ground and lifted her spirits, as occasion demanded — "My friends, my family, and my dog."

Vass offered classmates, parents and friends a recent arrival's perspective on some things U.S. citizens give no thought to. (Vass and his parents moved to this country from Hungary in June 1996.)

Of the schools, Vass said, "You might wonder if your your methods are unique. Well, I find the idea of electives combined with mandatory classes quite efficient. Whether it is sports, art, farming or science, every student is given the opportunity to develop his/her unique interests in certain areas during the elective courses, while still maintaining a general knowledge of the country and language in the mandatory classes."

In Hungary, still feeling the aftermath of Marxism, he said, there was no chance for specialization before college, because everyone took the same classes.

Another difference is the availability of jobs: In his native country, a family is considered lucky if both spouses are able to find a job. Here jobs are so plentiful even the teens (himself included) have jobs.

Said Vass, "I believe that I owe my parents a great deal, since they have sacrificed their job, their business in Hungary, just so that I could continue my education here in the U.S.

"... Again, I would like to say thank you to my parents and my friends and my teachers for their support. I really had a great time here at Northfield. Thank you."

For Northfield's commencement, Cale Howard provided the welcome and Jeremy Lane provided the closing.

Fourteen of the seniors were recognized for attaining the state's Academic Honors Diploma.

Greg Biehl

School: Northfield High School
Address: 1374E-400N, Urbana
Parents: Kris and LaDonna Biehl
Date of birth: May 15, 1981
Class Rank: Sixth
Plans after high school: After high school I plan to attend either the University of Indianapolis to major in physical therapy or Purdue University to major in landscape architecture.
Why this goal: I find both of these areas very interesting. Also, I have learned about physical therapy from my mom, who is currently a physical therapist at Huntington Memorial Hospital. I have found landscaping to be relaxing, but also challenging, and I like to use my knowledge around our house.
Favorite high school memory: My favorite high school memory is Odyssey of the Mind world finals. We had a great time competing against the best teams in the world. I also enjoyed the time I could spend with my friends.
School activities: Odyssey of the Mind (advancing to the world championships twice), basketball manager, National Honor Society, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Math & Science Club, fall play production.
Special honors or achievements: MSD Academic Award, All Conference Academic Team in track and football.

Northfield High School has announced Kurt Biehl as valedictorian, and Amy Penner as salutatorian of the Class of 2003.

Biehl is the son of Kris and LaDonna Biehl, Urbana.

He has been involved in National Honor Society, track, band, pep band, drama club, speech team, intramural basketball, Northfield Service Organization, and Math and Science Club.

He participates in North Manchester United Methodist Church youth group, Lagro United Methodist youth group and has been a vacation Bible school teacher's aide.

He plans to attend Purdue University,

Fire kills 400 hogs in rural Wabash barn

8-87

A barn fire at the Roger Biehl farm, R.R. 6. killed about 400 feeder hogs and caused between $70,000 and $80,000 in damages Sunday morning.

"We're waiting for the insurance people to come over and then we'll figure out what to do," Biehl's girlfriend Eileen Hlavaty said this morning. "It will take some time, but we're going to start over again. We're determined."

An electrical fire is being blamed for the blaze, Urbana Fire Chief Jim Krom said this morning.

Nearly 40 firefighters from Urbana, Lagro and Noble Township fire departments battled the fire for about three hours, Krom said. The fire began at 10:10 a.m.

Krom estimated the hogs loss at between $25,000 to $30,000 and damages to the barn to be between $40,000 and $50,000.

Biehl, who was home when the fire started, saved between 10 and 15 hogs, Krom said. No one was injured.

URBANA — Jeff Biehl has never been too far from his hometown here for very long.

After growing up on the east side of Ind. 13 in the home of his parents, Gene and Dot Biehl, he went off to Purdue University after graduating from Northfield in 1985.

After graduating as a doctor of veterinary medicine in 1992, Biehl spent three years at Countryside Veterinary Hospital (seven miles down the road in Wabash) and then joined Dr. Ulrich's Veterinary Clinic in Dongola, Ill.

In November, Biehl and his wife, the former Renee Darnell, moved back to Wabash County and into a house on County Road 500N, just to the west of Urbana.

He built his new office at the southwest corner of 500N and Ind. 13, just across the street from Mom and Dad, and opened for business Dec. 1 as Cornerstone Veterinary Services.

The office, built by D&B Construction, Lagro, is located on the site of the former Dutch's Furniture Store and former hardware store. Biehl is renting the land from his mom, who bought the property several years ago, and will be buying it from her in the future.

After D&B put up the shell, Biehl did much of the interior work on the 2,000-square-foot building himself.

"When we first opened, anyone could walk in and see what hadn't been finished yet," Biehl said. "Now, only Renee and I know what needs to be done."

Biehl can handle anything from farm animals to pets.

Biehl's wife serves as his assistant and part-time receptionist. Chris Dawes is the main receptionist.

Mrs. Biehl, a Wabash High School graduate, received a degree in history education from Purdue in 1991. The Biehls have two daughters — Wynter, 4, and Lexus, 10 months.

Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Walk-in hours are from 8 to 9 a.m. Monday through Saturday.

The phone numbers is 1-219-774-3322.

"It's good to be back in Wabash County again," says Dr. Jeff Biehl, Urbana.

Biehl opened Cornerstone Veterinary Services at 12 SR 13 South in Urbana Dec. 1. He moved with his family back to Wabash County from Illinois in September.

A 1985 graduate of Northfield High School, Biehl graduated from Purdue's school of veterinary medicine in 1992.

He began practice in Wabash with Countryside Veterinary Clinic, and in 1995 took a position with a clinic in Dongola, Ill.

Returning to Wabash County was something both he and his wife were happy to do. "It's nice to be living near family again. And I enjoy seeing clients I've worked with before," says Biehl.

"I grew up with some of the local farmers and being able to work with them is just another advantage of the move back home," he relates.

Biehl's wife, Renee, the daughter of Elaine and the late Earley Darnell, is a Wabash High School graduate. The couple has two daughters, Wynne, four, and Lexus, nine months.

The son of Gene and Dorothea Biehl, Urbana, Biehl grew up working in his family's hog operation. He explains he got interested in becoming a vet when he was "about 12 years old."

The successful running of Urbana's Seven-Mile Festival this past weekend proves that the tiny town is still on the map. And, if there is any one single reason why the community is so capable of hanging onto its existence, that reason is epitomized by Dot's Restaurant.

"I wish I would have tried it ten years sooner," was Dot Biehl's observation, after reflecting upon the satisfaction from, and success of the Urbana business bearing her name. She is the guiding force behind Dot's Corner, a combination grocery store and restaurant on Indiana 13 in Urbana.

On Sept. 10, 1982, Dot's Corner opened as a grocery. Three weeks later, the restaurant section was opened. "Urbana had gone some 12 years without a grocery store and many people hated having to go to Wabash or North Manchester every time they ran out of something," explained Dot.

Dot has lived in Urbana all her life, except for six months in Fort Wayne "which doesn't really count." She had the idea for her store several years ago, but her husband, Gene, who is a retired farmer and former Urbana fire chief, was reluctant to go along with the idea. After working in food service at Honeywell's and Manchester College for a number of years, Dot decided to combine the idea of a grocery and restaurant, and go into business for herself.

The restaurant has been successful enough that recently an addition to that part of Dot's Corner was finished. On a Wednesday morning, you can find a group of Urbana women at Dot's who have been meeting for breakfast there, weekly, almost since the restaurant opened. "Since last Wednesday was the 4th of July, we didn't know if anyone would show up. But sure enough, a number of them came in just the same."

Wednesday is also a busy day for the restaurant because that is the largest day for the Roann and North Manchester nutritional centers, which are catered by Dot's. "On Wednesdays, we prepare around 90 meals for the two places while other days we fix 60 to 65 meals." Delivering meals to the sites and being available to talk and joke with customers is part of husband Gene's contribution to Dot's Corner.

Although she originally thought that the grocery would be more successful, it has not come along as quickly as Dot first thought. "At the present, plans for enlarging the grocery are on hold, even though it would be fairly easy to do."

Although Dot's is patronized

mostly by local people, customers come from other places. "Contractors stop back often when they are in the area," she said. And often, as Dot explains, we just "lend people a helping hand." Helping could be delivering something from the grocery to a home in the community for someone who cannot get out, or providing help for a tourist passing through.

Dot employs two people on a full-time basis and two on a part-time basis. John Drook, a Wabash policeman, is their Saturday morning cook. "He makes the best omelet around this area; he puts everything in," testifies Gene. Dot agrees and invites everyone to stop by and enjoy one of John's omelets in her new addition. But then, why wait until Saturday to enjoy the friendly hospitality of Dot's Corner?

The following information was not a part of Mom's Biehl History Books.

Could the following pages possibly be the boat record for when Theobald (Theobold) Biehl arrived in the United States of America with his parents (Peter & Catharine) and seven brothers and sisters. However note that even though Theobold's birth year of 1814 is within a year of that calculated from his age at his death, the information does not agree with what is said that he told his sons as given on page 11 of Biehl_History_Book2. Maybe the whole family left Germany so the older sons would not be drafted??

Michelle Keel (daughter of Jean (Littlefield) Keel) checked into this information some more. Her message follows:

Quote: "It prompted me to dig a bit deeper into the record. There's something odd with it and I would love for you and your daughter's opinion since you've spent much longer with the Biehl family records than I have.

When I went looking for the rest of the manifest, I couldn't figure out how to find the other pages on the Ellis Island site. But I did find it on FamilySearch. And there is a discrepancy in the dates. When you look at the entire manifest record, it is from August 28, 1835, not 1825. Which then throws all of the ages off by a decade. :(

FamilySearch Links:

Page 1 (cover sheet): https://www.familysearch.org/ark:/61903/3:1:939V-P349-L?i=728&cc=1849782

Page 2 (with ship details): https://www.familysearch.org/ark:/61903/3:1:939V-P348-G?i=729&cc=1849782

Page 3 (with the Biehls): https://www.familysearch.org/ark:/61903/3:1:939V-P34N-Q?i=730&cc=1849782

Another weird thing is that the attached digital index flips from 1835 for the first two pages to 1825 for the third, even though the written date and captain's name match the manifest's details. This possible mistake is captured both on FamilySearch and on Ellis Island. The handwriting is not helping on this one.

What are your thoughts? The 1835 date seems to contradict most other documents that I've seen for Theobald as well."

Katie did some more searching. Katie feels that the boat record she found is for a different Theobold family. She feels that someone misread the date written at the bottom of the 2nd page of the passenger list. The date at the top is clearly 1835. She did some more searching on 'findagrave.com'. She could find Peter, Catherine, and Theobold, and other members of the family on the boat record. The tombstone for Theobold in this family does not match the picture of the tombstone that we have for our Theobald. Also the county on the cemetery records do not match. Our Theobald was buried in the German Cemetery in Justus, Stark County, Ohio. So the bottom line is that we do not have the link to go back to Germany.

The next 5 pages include the information found in 2018 which now appear to be for the wrong Theobold Biehl family
