Roann family of eight has time to get involved

1988

By MARCIA STEELE
Roann
Correspondent

The lifestyle of a rural Roann family centers around each member having a chore to do, but also being of help to one another.

The family consists of father, mother and six children. The father is Rick Parson, whose occupation is a self-employed logger. Rick starts his days early and hauls logs to Illinois and many parts of Indiana. He is also president of the North Miami School Board.

Gloria, the wife and mother, is busy each day but has many hobbies she enjoys when she finds the time to relax. Her day begins around 5:30 a.m. and since the summer of 1981 she has been a rural mail-carrier in the Rochester area. She also has a part-time beauty shop in her home for a few regular customers and has been the leader of the Perry Willing-Workers 4-H Club for seven years. She also is a member of the Perry-Do-Rites Homemakers Club.

Rick and Gloria have been married for 21 years and they attend the Niconza Baptist Church. The home where the Parson family lives was formerly Gloria's home where she was born and raised.

The children are Raye Anne, who works at a veal barn at Mentone; Renelle, a freshman at Manchester College; Renita, a ninth grader; Ranissa, eighth grade; Ricky, sixth grade; and Ryan, fifth grade--all at North Miami. All are or have been in 4-H club. The oldest two girls have been in 10 years. Their 4-H projects are goats and cows and any money they may receive for their projects is divided equally, because thay all help each other.

Some of their school activities all three of them are in include the school band. Renita and Ranissa play girl's basketball. All four of the girls and one of the boys have attended church camps.

Another thing they liked to do before they all became so busy was go camping. In August the family enjoyed a trip to North Carolina to Tops Sail Island near Wilmington where they had a good time and beautiful weather and the kids enjoyed fishing.

One of the many things Gloria does to occupy her valuable time is to raise a garden and then as she harvests the produce she cans and freezes to later prepare for her family.

While talking to homemade items either by them or from teachers of some of the kids. All the kids have decorations of their own and Gloria said when they all leave home and take their decorations, her tree would probably be bare. When the tree goes up all the family will gather around to decorate.

The home in which the Parson family lives is a large comfortable home in the country which they have been remodeling. The kitchen-dining area was built before the Civil War and it's said that part of the house was built over part of the underground railraod.

She also has a part-time beauty shop in her home for a few regular customers and has been the leader of the Perry Willing-Workers 4-H Club for seven years. She also is a member of the Perry-Do-Rites Homemakers Club.

Rick and Gloria have been married for 21 years and they attend the Niconza Baptist Church. The home where the Parson family lives was formerly Gloria's home where she was born and raised and has lived all but three years of her life. The family activities at home center around meals at a large table in the dining area. The beautiful long table belonged to Gloria's grandmother. Gloria plays the piano and the family sings hymns that she plays.

With a warm fire in the fireplace in the large family room several members of the family may be seen reading their favorite book.

Some of the favorite things they do are crochet, needlepoint, embroidery and puzzles. Once for Christmas a puzzle with 2,500 pieces was put together by one of the daughters, framed and entered as a 4-H project. When the family room is completed it will have a place to hang on the wall.

The six children all live at home and have chores to do. As mother said, if all didn't work together, nothing would get done. Everyone gets up at the same time every day, but when there are no school activities at night the school kids are in bed at 9:00 p.m. Mom and Dad try to go to bed around 11:00 p.m. They all have busy days and long them are in include the school band. Renita and Ranissa play girl's basketball. All four of the girls and one of the boys have attended church camps.

Another thing they liked to do before they all became so busy was go camping. In August the family enjoyed a trip to North Carolina to Tops Sail Island near Wilmington where they had a good time and beautiful weather and the kids enjoyed fishing.

One of the many things Gloria does to occupy her valuable time is to raise a garden and then as she harvests the produce she cans and freezes to later prepare for her family.

While talking to Gloria in the beautiful dining area of her home, a couple of the girls were close by cutting apart the school pictures they had received that day. The boys had a nice warm fire going in the firplace in the family room which brought me to ask Gloria about if the family had any special holiday traditions.

She says their family celebrates the holidays at her (Gloria's) grandma's and also her parents. It's a family time. One thing that she always does on Christmas morning is make yeast rolls. Also, when she gets up she lights candles and plays Christmas carols on records then they open their gifts and eat their breakfast. In the afternoon each one does their own thing, maybe with something new they have recieved for Christmas. Raye Anne always expects puzzles, and her dad, Rick, expects books, especially Westerns.

In years past they have always cut their own tree. She said the kids are talking of having a 20 ft. tree this year to be put up in the family room, but she dosen't know yet about the size. All the decorations on the tree are that part of the house was built over part of the underground railraod.

Ridenour gets nation

By ROBERT BRYAN
Plain Dealer Reporter
and
Associated Press reports

Wabash native Jim Ridenour had mixed emotions today, one day after learning of his appointment as National Park Service director.

"Gee, what a great challenge, but also what a great responsibility," he said during a telephone interview with the Plain Dealer. The responsibility, he noted, would be for 354 national parks with 80 million acres of land ranging from Guam to the Virgin Islands. He also is responsible for 20,000 employees.

A 1960 Wabash High School graduate, Ridenour spoke from Pinehurst, N.C., where he and his wife, Anna, are marking an early celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary in June. Aware several weeks ago that he was the likely appointee, he said he knew he would be busy in coming months.

Ridenour, a two-term director of the Indiana Department of Natural Resources under Gov. Robert Orr, said he was honored with the new appointment, particularly because he feels President Bush's concern for the environment is genuine.

The appointment wasn't certain until Thursday morning, Ridenour said. Among the final routine checks he underwent was a drug test. "I think that's highly appropriate; the president wants a drug-free environment."

The appointment, which does not require Senate confirmation, was made by Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan. It is effective April 17.

Ridenour, 47, said he spent much of Thursday afternoon and evening on the telephone with well-wishers, jokingly saying he dreads his long-distance bill.

The Ridenour family will move to Washington, D.C., and give up the Lafayette residence, but only after Mrs. Ridenour finishes her teaching duties in Lafayette this year. They're to return to Lafayette from Pinehurst in the next day or so.

Ridenour's mother, Velma Curless, rural Wabash, told the Plain Dealer she thought the appointment was "wonderful, because he's so enthusiastic and knows so much about this kind of work. It's quite an honor that they would consider him."

She spoke by phone from Florida, where she and her husband, Robert, are wintering. Ridenour's father, Morris, died in 1970.

Mrs. Curless said her son seemed excited when he phoned a week ago to say that the appointment was virtually certain.

Ridenour said it's difficult to specify a time when he "moved from Wabash." He left for college in 1960, he said, but has returned periodically in the years since.

Ridenour said he's gathered, from newspaper reports, the tenor of some of the early criticism of his appointment.

"He's the James Watt of Indiana," said Nancy Light, a spokeswoman for the Sierra Club. Watt was the controversial interior secretary in the early years of the Reagan administration who was broadly criticized by environmentalists.

Another jab from the Sierra Club, Ridenour said, accused him of wanting to put golf courses in the national parks. "I think any Hoosier
