Milton and Elizabeth (Wright) Gill
(Gill_History_Scrapbook.pdf)

This is one of several histories/scrapbooks that were created by Martha Jane (Stouffer) Biehl
(1/2/1926 - 9/11/2012)

This digital history/scrapbook was created in loving memory of Mom in September 2023.

(1926 – 2012)

Details: The original pages in the history/scrapbook were scanned at 300 dpi in color with a EPSON Perfection V800 Photo Flatbed Scanner. The final “digital book” was created by Larry Biehl. The information in the digital book comes from a notebook, a file folder, and a Word file. The last section is from a Microsoft Word file that is very similar to some of the text in the early part of the document that has many hand written notes on the pages. The last two pages is a photo that was probably at the Dan and Nora (Gill) Garber home place for many years.

MILTON GILL was born October 5, 1828 in (Apon, Ohio) according to the obituary. On the Ohio map, there is no such town now. I believe it may be in Preble Co. Ohio. The obituary also said his parents died while he was quite young and people by the name of Yount raised him. No brothers or sisters were mentioned. At the Ft. Wayne library I found a Milton Gill on the 1840 census of Darke Co. Ohio, Harrison Twp. 2 people were in the 60-70 age group and male and female in the 20-30 age group. According to the Gill Family Bible now in the possession of Duane Bechtold near North Manchester, Milton Gill Married Elizabeth Wright on October 26, 1847 in Preble Co., OH. She was the daughter of William and Eva (Rinehard) Wright, Sr. She was born January 30, 1830 in Preble Co., OH. Her parents were born in VA. I know she had some brothers that came to the North Manchester area. Milton and Elizabeth were in Preble Co. OH, Jasper Twp. in the 1850 Census. He was a farmer. and they had one daughter Louisa at the time. According to the obituary they came to Chester Twp. Wabash Co. IN in 1855 southeast of Servia to what was wilderness then. He donated land in 1876 for a German Baptist church in Chester Twp. His wife was called "Aunt Betty". In 1860, 1870, 1880 Census they were always in Chester Twp. Wabash Co. It always said that his parents were born in England and hers were born in VA. They had 8 children: Louisa Frances born 9-14-1848 in Ohio, Wm Ira born April 22, 1850 in Ohio, Franklin Alonzo born June 13-1853 in Ohio, James Medford born July 17, 1860 Near North Manchester, Elmer born March 2, 1863 near North Manchester, Dora born July 24, 1866 near North Manchester, Charles born December 1, 1867 near North Manchester and Nora born 3-29-1873 near North Manchester. All these birthdates were recorded in the family Bible. She died 3-22-1905. After her death Milton lived with his children. He was living with Nora and her husband Daniel Garber when he died April 3, 1909 -- blood vessel in his head burst. They are both buried in Fairview Cemetery. When he died he was survived by 7 children, 20 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Mrs. Milton Gill.

Elizabeth Wright, daughter of William and Eva Wright, was born in Preble county, Ohio, Janury 30, 1830, and died at her home near this city March 22, 1904, aged 70 years, one month and 23 days. She was married to Milton Gill, October 27, 1847 and in 1855 they came to Wabash county, settling on a farm two miles southeast of Servia, which was then a wilderness. They were among the pioneer residents of that section and are well known to all the older people of the township as most excellent people in every sense of the word. Mrs. Gill was the mother of eight children, one of whom died in infancy. Those living are Ira, Alonzo and Charles Gill, Mrs. Francis Taylor, and Mrs. Daniel Garber, residents of this community and James Gill, of Illinois, and Elmer Gill, of Vicksburg, Miss. Besides these children she leaves nineteen grand children, eight great grand children, her husband, four brothers and one sister besides a great many friends to mourn her death. In 1857 she united with the Antioch Christian church and two years later with her husband transferred her church relationship to the German Baptist church in which she lived a conscientious member until death. "Aunt Betty" Gill, as she was commonly called by those who knew her best, was recognized by all as a hard working, kind hearted and cheerful woman whom everybody loved and respected. Her death is mourned by a large circle of friends. Her funeral took place last Friday at Fairview church, conducted by Elder S. S. Ulrey, assisted by Rev. Jordan and Rev. Krider, burial in the cemetery adjoining. A large congregation of friends and neighbors was present and her remains were carried to their last resting place by six of her grand sons, and her casket was covered with flowers contributed by her grandchildren. The family desires to thank their friends for assistance and sympathy given them during the time of the sickness, death and burial of the deceased.

... loss is his eternal gain.

6-4-1966

Tony and Donna Pulley, 65 Sherman St., say they have "an awful lot to be thankful for" this Thanksgiving.

That includes the couple's "three healthy children" — Adam, Jared and Nathan — who were born Aug. 31 in Parkview Hospital, Fort Wayne.

"It's impossible to list all the things we have to be thankful for," says Tony.

The holidays will be different this year for the Pulleys: It will be their first as a family of five.

"Usually we have several places to go to visit — all the relatives on both sides," Tony says. This year, Thanksgiving will be spent visiting only friends and relatives who live in Wabash. "By the time we get them (the babies) all fed, packed and ready to go, it's time for another feeding," he explains. "At Christmas, everyone is coming here. That's going to be different."

The Pulleys are anticipating other changes in their celebration of Christmas. "It's been more of a religious holiday than a gift-giving holiday," says Tony. "We've always celebrated the birth of Christ. But as the kids grow up, we're looking forward to seeing other aspects."

The Pulleys, gathered in their living room, talk about the changes three babies have brought to the household. Tony, a partner in the Wenrich-Pulley Insurance Agency, holds Adam, who alternately sleeps, wakes and cries for an early feeding. Donna rocks Jared, feeding him, then patting him gently on the back. Nathan sleeps in a wind-up swing; when it stops, he cries until Tony winds it and starts the swinging again.

"We have all the things that go along with kids, just in three times the quantity," Tony says. "We don't do anything different than anybody else — just in a bigger way."

The couple avoids using the word "triplets."

"We're trying to start early to bring them up as three boys with a common birthdate, not as triplets," Tony says. "It may be an impossible dream. For one thing, we don't plan to dress them alike.

"If someone asks, 'How are the triplets?' we say, 'The boys are doing fine.' There's not much else we can do. There will always be interest on the part of the community."

The couple says there are definite physical and personality differences among their sons.

Adam, who was the smallest at birth, is now the largest, at nearly 9½ pounds. He's a very good eater, "really easy-going and kind of laid-back." He has blond-brown hair and blue eyes. He likes to stand, with a little assistance from his father on balance and likes to look at himself in the mirror.

Nathan has "a lot of determination." His eyes are turning brown; his hair is reddish. Nathan coos and smiles the most, showing his little dimple and big grin. He has the longest fingers of the three. "That's for basketball," says Tony. "He'll be the center — he's tallest."

"For right now," Donna qualifies. "That's true," says Tony. "Who knows."

Jared falls right in between — "the average kid." His hair is also reddish, and his eyes are turning brown. He has strong muscles and development in his eyes: He watches people and his brothers.

"There aren't many ways their personalities are alike," Tony says. "Not yet," Donna adds.

"There are lots of little things (differences) that we see that wouldn't be of interest to other people," Tony says. Such as? "Their toes are different."

Donna says the boys generally eat every four hours and sleep six to seven hours each night, "which is wonderful." When and how much each baby eats and any special notes are recorded on clipboards. "Otherwise, it would be impossible to keep track of how much each ate and when," explains Tony.

The boys go through 120 cans of formula each month and 800 disposable diapers in a month (that's 200 per week). So far, the babies are still using diapers that were shower gifts; when those are gone, the couple plans to contract with a diaper service. They also plan to make a lot of their own baby food.

The couple says they are grateful to the community for its help. "The people of Wabash have been very helpful," says Tony. "We want to say 'thanks' to the community."

"The (Wabash Christian) church has been fantastic," Donna says. "They brought food for a couple of weeks for our evening meals."

Adds Tony: "They provided volunteer assistance while I was at work during the day and threw an 'It's a Boy Boy Boy' shower for me, which was a big success. They're still providing us with sitters if we want to get out; there's a list of volunteers ready."

A neighbor, Diane Steele, comes in to help the family every day. Tony's mother comes in every morning to help.

"If Donna doesn't get her shower then, she won't get it," says Tony.

How did the couple adjust to being an instant family of five?

"Overnight," says Tony. "We wanted a family and decided we were ready to change our lifestyle. When we found out we were expecting three, that gave us about six months to prepare, so it wasn't exactly overnight."

That included mental and emotional preparation — "trying to get used to the idea" — and physical preparation — rearranging finances, finishing second-floor remodeling and buying a station wagon.

Since the birth, the couple has had extra laundry, bottle-washing and formula-making. They've taken an "awful lot of pictures" — a large photo album is nearly full. They don't go out as much; when they do, they need two babysitters. And they're having fun watching their sons.

"Each is developing faster in some areas," Tony says. For example, Adam uses his fingers more; Jared uses his hands more, and Nathan "just waves his arms around a lot."

"They're each working on different aspects."

As the boys grow older, the couple says they don't plan to do things just with the three; they want to give individual time to each.

"That's what you would do with any family, but it might be a little more important for us," Donna says. "This is a regular family."

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Clark 1982

Given in marriage by her father, L. Boyd Thompson, 301 W. Main St., Denise Lyn Thompson became the bride of Steven Wayne Clark Saturday, June 5, in the United Methodist Church at 1:30 p.m.

The Rev. Carl Lemna performed the double ring ceremony.

Bride is the daughter of the late Jean Thompson. Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Clark, 705 Crestview Dr., are the parents of the groom.

Music was performed by Jeanette Wilcox, organist, and Lauralee Young, vocalist.

Main altar was graced with a large floral arrangement of carnations, glads, pompoms and baby's breath in the bride's color tones. Ninetiered brass tree candelabras with mauve and white overlay satin bows enlightened the altar. Mothers' pews were decorated with three-tier brass candelabras with overlay satin bows and the main aisle was enhanced with single-tier brass candelabras with overlay satin bows.

Wearing matching floor-length burgundy dresses, Grace Blevins and Nola Staton greeted the guests.

Ivory bridal gown of dacron organdy had a high neckline of venise lace with a yoke of Schiffli re-embroidered lace and a ruffle of venise lace at the bottom of the yoke. Gown featured a chapel length train with a nine-inch ruffle of venise lace around the bottom. She wore a venise lace-covered hat with a blusher veil.

Bride chose to carry a long flowing cascade of red tea roses, feathered pink carnations and baby's breath. It was accented with petite mauve silk flowers.

Bride's stepmother wore an aqua floor-length gown and the groom's mother wore a burgundy floor-length gown. Each carried a hand-clutch bouquet of pink carnations, mauve silk flowers and baby's breath with ivory ribbon streamers.

Tina Young, 908 Wayne St., was maid of honor. Her mauve floor-length dress was made of luster-glo knit with a yoke of Schiffli embroidery matching the bride's. She wore a matching mauve hat also.

Sheryl Zinsmeister, 902 Second St., Extended, was a bridesmaid. Her gown was similar to the maid of honor's. She wore a mauve silk floral wreath headpiece.

Both bridal attendants carried round nosegays of red tea roses, feathered pink carnations, baby's breath and mauve silks accented with lacy ivory ribbon streamers.

Amy Michelle Clark was the flower girl. Her ivory dress matched the bride's with lace around the neck, sleeves and hem. She wore an ivory silk floral wreath headpiece. Jonathan Clark was ring bearer.

Michael Clark, 509 Crestview Dr., was best man. Greg Clark, North Manchester, was the other attendant. Ushers were the bride's brother, Mark Thompson, Bloomington, Ind. and Kim Bradley, Marion, Ind.

Dear Mrs. Biehl:

In May of 1979 you wrote me in regard to the Gill history and asked me for some information.

I have been working on this off and on since, and it has been so long that I thought it would be best for me to send you what I have compiled for you to compare with your records.

I think it is wonderful that you are doing this, and if you will let me know what information you are missing I will promise to help you as much as I can.

Very truly yours,

GILL HISTORY

WM IRA GILL was born 4-22-1850 in OH. He married Emma Amelia Love on 12-15-1872. She was born 11-22-1853 at Lagro, IN. Tombstone says 1851-1913 and 1854-1936. The obituary said he committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid on 8-6-1913. He was in Miami Co. in 1895 in Erie Twp. and was in the Wabash area in 1901-1909. I couldn't find him in the 1900 census in Miami or Wabash county. He was in Chester Twp. 1912-1913. She remarried to George W. Strickler on 11-9-1916. MOTHER BARB IHNEN gazes down on her daughter, Amy, who weighed in at one pound, nine ounces when she was born 16 weeks early. Amy is home now with her parents, Barb and Max, and brother and sister, Matt and Andrea.

Ihnens Bring Daughter Home

Premature 'Baby Thumbelina' Beats Odds

by Estelle Rodis-Brown

A modern-day Thumbelina was born recently to Barb and Max Ihnen, weighing only 1 lb., 9 oz. Amy Elizabeth Ihnen stretched just a tad longer than a dollar bill when she was born Sept. 18, 1993 - 3 1/2 months earlier than her due date.

Her legs were as big around as her mother's finger. Her fingers were the width of the tip of a felt tip pen. Her eyes were still fused shut, the grooves of her brain had not yet formed, and even a 'premie' diaper cut in half dwarfed Amy's tiny body.

Nurses at Lutheran Hospital, Fort Wayne, did their best to recreate a womb-like atmosphere for the delicate baby. They had to keep Amy shielded from noise, movement and touch, because almost any stimulus would set her heart rate to dangerous levels. Because of these precautions, her own parents were not permitted to hold their daughter. Max (Manchester High School class of 1976) and Barb had to wait six long weeks before they could take Amy in their arms.

By that time, Amy had progressed to a robust 2 lb., 9 oz. - after having dropped to as low as 13 oz. Meanwhile, as Amy was cared for at the hospital, Barb returned to her job at Laketon Elementary School, where she teaches gifted and talented students in the third and fourth grades. She resumed work within two weeks of Amy's birth, saying it was easier to cope with her daughter's delicate situation by keeping busy.

"Besides," she said, "physically, I felt fine, and I knew Amy was in good hands." But she and her family made innumerable visits to Lutheran as they waited for the day they could bring Amy to their rural Silver Lake home.

At only 24 weeks gestation, Amy was born 16 weeks earlier than a full term baby. Her chances of survival were less than 50 percent. And if she survived, her parents were told Amy would probably undergo several major surgeries and infections before leaving the hospital. After that, they were told to prepare for ongoing intestinal, retinal (eye), heart, and respiratory problems.

But, as the Ihnen say, "God intervened." This real-life Thumbelina story has a fairy tale spending the week with her host family along with Dubois County's Junior Miss, Elizabeth Hamilton. Baby Comes Home happy ending. Max and Barb brought Amy home to siblings Matt (12) and Andrea (10) on Dec. 27 - nine days before her projected date of birth. At 5 1/2 lbs., Amy now is almost the weight of a healthy, full-term infant. She doesn't sleep in a walnut shell, but her big sister's doll cradle suits her just fine. She has not had any surgeries or illnesses to date. Amy ripped the respirator off her face two times while in the hospital, and now her only medical 'attachment' is a surveillance monitor which tracks Amy's heart beats and breathing pattern. An alarm sounds if her breathing or heart beat stops, alerting her family to perform CPR and protect her from Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS).

The Ihnens are radiant, now that the worst of their fears for Amy are behind them. Matt and Andrea are tender with their new little sister, and compete for the opportunity to feed, diaper or hold her. Max and Barb are overwhelmingly grateful.

Amy's life is especially precious to them because they lost an infant son, Kyle, almost two years ago. Unlike Amy, Kyle was a hefty full-term baby, weighing 11 lb., 6 oz. when he was born Feb. 29, 1992.

But during labor, Barb's placenta ripped, resulting in oxygen deprivation to Kyle. After an emergency cesarean section at Wabash County Hospital, Kyle was transferred to Lutheran Hospital. But it was too late. Kyle's kidneys failed.

Amy's birth, Barb can look from school, tired from the week's effort. Max cooked up some burritos for supper, and Barb blamed the spicy Mexican food for a nagging stomach ache which followed. But by midnight, Barb was convinced that her pain was not indigestion; it was labor.

On the way to Lutheran, Barb's contractions were already three minutes apart. When the nurse examined her, she was told her labor was too progressed to stop the inevitable birth process.

At that point, Barb broke. "I just cried," she recalls. "I didn't want to put our family - our kids - through another death of a sibling."

Amy was born - very much alive - at 1:55 a.m.

Gazing at his daughter napping in a bassinette, Max says, "With Kyle, the damage had already been done. It was too late to correct that. But with Amy, she was born fine. We just had to keep anything from happening to her."

Barb elaborates, "I really think God has been with us through the whole thing. God chose not to intervene in Kyle's case, but we have to believe, 'Thine will be done.' When Amy was born, we thought, 'We handled it before. We can handle it again.' But the outcome was better.

"And the whole community has supported us. All the churches in town prayed for both the babies. And our church - South Pleasant United Methodist - has been just great. Teachers from school would take turns bringing meals in to us, so we didn't have to worry about that. And a group of farmers from the area got together and picked the whole bean field for Max and took it to the elevator. People have really been there for us."

Despite Kyle's death, the Ihnens had felt convinced they were to try again for another child. But now that Amy is home, they say their family is complete.

"We've had the pants scared off us two times now," says Barb, as she scoops Amy up in her arms. She smiles, "I think we're done."
